SECTION 1. THE HISTORY OF THE SURVEY, SAMPLE DESIGN & FIELDWORK

The data provide a rich data source on the demographic, social and economic position of older adults; COVID-19 induced fear, worries and restrictions-related concerns; health-related quality of life domains; health behaviours and health services engagement; social capital and social participation; economic behaviours (including saving and spending) and consumption behaviours (e.g., Internet use, TV watching, dining out); return to workplace experiences and preferences. Figure 5 summarises the main domains, subdomains (including selected items) used in the survey.

The survey data were collected between October 2021 and January 2022 using electronic and postal self-completion interviews (with an option to complete the survey online) and telephone-assisted personal interviews. Validated instruments were used to measure complex constructs such as life satisfaction (Satisfaction with Life Scale), resilience (Short Resilience Scale), subjective well-being (Measure of Subjective Wellbeing), hopelessness (Beck's Hopelessness Scale), loneliness (the UCLA Loneliness Scale, the De Jong Gierveld Loneliness Scale for Emotional and Social for Loneliness) tapping broadly into the health-related quality of life domain. The survey items related to demographics, social circumstances, employment, physical health, mental health, health behaviour, social connectedness, and social participation were adopted from the HAGIS pilot study to facilitate longitudinal analyses for key domains.

Health service engagement items were developed by drawing on the HAGIS research team's multidisciplinary expertise, enhanced by relevant literature searches. The COVID-19 concerns and worries were measured by the instrument developed by the HAGIS academic team, with support from volunteer co-researchers. The initial development of the instrument was informed by a rapid review of scientific and grey literature, followed by the rounds of item reduction exercises. A detailed description of the development, validation process and final scale are reported elsewhere (Comerford et al., 2022).

Due to the large number of questions asked, participants were required to answer the demographic section and then only three of the seven modules as indicated in Table 1.1:

For a full description of the survey design, sampling methodology please see Arakelyan S, Brown T, McCabe L., et al (2023a) and Arakelyan, et al (2023b).

The funding for the HAGIS COVID-19 Impact and Recovery Study is provided by the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) as part of the UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) rapid response to COVID-19. Grant number: ES/V01711X/1.

We are extremely thankful to the academic researchers at the HAGIS team for their support with the development of the survey instrument. We gratefully acknowledge the important contributions of our community-based co-researchers Roy Anderson, Elizabeth Chrystall, David Curry, Margot Fairclough, Christine Ritchie, Pat Scrutton and Ann Smith in the development of the study materials.

SECTION 2 WEIGHTING THE SAMPLE USING POPULATION ESTIMATES

3,371 useable observations were included in the final dataset, representing an estimated population of 2.2 million adults in 2020 aged 50 and over.¹ Given the history and recruitment methodologies of both the HAGIS and GS Surveys, there is likely to be a mismatch between the structures of the combined sample and the Scottish population at the time of the survey. In the event, individual- and grossing weights based on gender, age (band) and ‘compass’ location have been computed and added to the dataset, using the National Records of Scotland’s estimates of the Scottish population (ibid) as the guide.

Figure 2.1. charts the gender/age-band distribution of the estimated 2020 population. As might be expected, the total cohort sizes decline in the age group, with females living longer on average than males. That said, it is noticeable that the 50-54 age group was already smaller than the 55-59 one, reflecting the rapid reduction in the birth rate in Scotland after the 1960s.

Table 2.1. summarises the total population and sample gender/age band categories as percentages of their respective totals. While females made up 53.2% of the 50+ population in 2020, they make up 59.0% of this sample cohort, though the over-representation is contained in the 60-79 range. While males are underrepresented overall, they are overrepresented in the 65-79 range. Accordingly, it will be necessary to apply weights to the data that aim to correct both the general gender bias in the data, as well as those specific to each age group.

Table 2.1 Scottish 2020 Population and Sample proportions: Age/Gender
Age Band	Population		Sample		Difference (Sample-Population)
	% of grand total		% of grand total
	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males
50-54	9.3%	8.6%	7.4%	4.2%	-1.9%	-4.4%
55-59	9.4%	8.8%	7.7%	5.6%	-1.7%	-3.2%
60-64	8.3%	7.8%	11.5%	6.9%	3.2%	-0.8%
65-69	7.1%	6.6%	13.9%	9.2%	6.9%	2.6%
70-74	6.8%	6.2%	10.8%	8.6%	4.0%	2.4%
75-79	5.0%	4.1%	5.6%	4.4%	0.6%	0.4%
80-84	3.8%	2.7%	1.5%	1.6%	-2.3%	-1.2%
85-89	2.4%	1.5%	0.5%	0.5%	-1.9%	-1.0%
90+	1.4%	0.6%	0.1%	0.0%	-1.2%	-0.6%

Another potential source of misrepresentation is the geographical location. At the time of the survey, Scotland operated with 32 Local Authorities and 14 Health Boards. Given the size of the sample in relation to the number of gender-age group– Local Authority combinations (576) an early decision was made to trial weights for the 162 gender-age group– Health Board combinations. In the event, too many categories were either completely unrepresented, or too sparsely represented in the sample,² so the categorisation was limited to the 72 gender-age group– ‘Compass’ (North/South/East/West) combinations. Respondents’ Health Board locations were mapped to the compass points as indicated in Table 2.2.

² For example, no one from the separate Borders, Dumfries and Galloway, Orkney and Shetland Health Board areas participated in the survey.

Health Board	Compass	Health Board	Compass
Ayrshire and Arran	West	Highland	North
Borders	South	Lanarkshire	West
Dumfries & Galloway	South	Lothian	East
Fife	East	Orkney	North
Forth Valley	East	Shetland	North
Grampian	North	Tayside	East
Greater Glasgow and Clyde	West	Western Isles	North

Table 2.3 indicates the percentage differences between the sample and the population for each gender/age group/compass sub-category.

Age Band	Females				Males
	North	South	East	West	North	South	East	West
50-54	-1.17%	-0.34%	0.21%	-0.58%	-1.20%	-0.42%	-0.94%	-1.85%
55-59	-1.07%	-0.44%	0.86%	-1.04%	-1.17%	-0.43%	-0.17%	-1.44%
60-64	-0.20%	-0.10%	3.11%	0.47%	-0.83%	-0.31%	0.41%	-0.08%
65-69	1.82%	0.09%	3.38%	1.57%	1.04%	-0.12%	1.07%	0.63%
70-74	0.46%	-0.28%	2.63%	1.19%	0.22%	-0.28%	2.05%	0.40%
75-79	-0.21%	-0.23%	1.47%	-0.41%	-0.22%	-0.03%	0.89%	-0.26%
80-84	-0.59%	-0.16%	-0.54%	-1.02%	-0.30%	-0.07%	-0.26%	-0.52%
85-89	-0.36%	-0.08%	-0.67%	-0.79%	-0.19%	-0.09%	-0.25%	-0.46%
90+	-0.26%	-0.05%	-0.37%	-0.54%	-0.12%	-0.04%	-0.22%	-0.22%

While there is a spread of under- and over-sampling evident, females in the East between 55 and 79 and males between 65 and 79 are over-sampled, while males and females in their fifties and 80 and over are under-sampled. Everyone in the South is (moderately) under-sampled, while those in the North are, for the most part also under-sampled, except for those in the 65-69 age range.
